

Princess Margaret Dental Associates Student bursary.

Kaylah Whyte is now a fourth year International Studies student. She has been the proud recipient of the PMH Dentistry Bursary for the past two years.

Kaylah's many interests include foreign affairs, conflict resolution in developing countries, resource scarcity and women and minority rights. Kaylah is also the Vice President of Glendon's Rights and Democracy delegation. Her interests outside of school include Black American literature, Feminist literature and Yoga. After completing a Specialized Honours baccalaureate in International Studies, and a Certificate Programme of Law and Social Thought, Kaylah will continue on to complete graduate studies, hopefully in a country where her interest will be nurtured and her proficiency in French perfected.

Kaylah is excited about her role as the Iran Symposium Communications and Media Coordinator. Organizing this year's International Symposium is truly the unique opportunity Kaylah has been searching for, a chance for Kaylah to expand her research areas and develop new skills. Fortunate to study such a significant country as Iran, Kaylah will research Iran's history and diplomatic decisions to further understand its rising regional influence and impact on the international scene.

The Princess Margaret Dental Associates bursary was set up in 2008 to reward the child of any dental support staff and to help them in their goal towards post-secondary education.
